QUIZ DENTIST IN EXTORTION PLOT

MACDONALD BEGINS TASK OF SELECTING MEMBERS OF CABINET

To Probably Increase Size; New Faces To Be Included

LONDON, Oct. 29.—With the backing of the newly elected Tory majority in the house of commons, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today turned to the task of organizing the new national cabinet which will put through parliament the government's program, for national economic and financial reconstruction.

Most of the members of the coalition cabinet will be retained, but there will be a new chancellor of the exchequer, and the number of cabinet members probably will be increased from ten to twenty, the usual number prior to the organization of the present emergency coalition.

The prime minister lost no time today in making use of the "doctor mandate" accorded him by the people of Great Britain at the polls.

His first act was to visit Buckingham Palace, where for almost an hour he was closeted in secret with King George. Enthusiastic crowds gave him a tremendous ovation upon his arrival at the palace and upon his departure.

Immediately after leaving the palace, Premier MacDonald plunged into conference with his advisors, preparatory to a formal cabinet meeting this afternoon.

The prime minister described his conference with King George as "very cordial" but gave no indication of what transpired at the meeting.

It was understood the premier planned to pool advice from all sources and frame his policy accordingly. First announcement of the new policy is expected to be made in the lord mayor's banquet speech at the Guild Hall on November 9.

Both MacDonald and Baldwin, as well as the National Liberal leader, Sir Herbert Samuel, have made it plain that they consider the government's triumph in the election was a national victory, and that "national cooperation" should continue to be the keynote of the government's policies.

So large, however, will be the Conservative representation in parliament—a total of 471 seats out of 515, that pressure was already being brought to bear today upon MacDonald to give the Conservatives a larger majority of cabinet posts.

Having made a protective tariff the leading issue in their campaign, the Conservatives want to push through a tariff bill as soon as possible after parliament gets into action on November 10. The high tariff advocates will urge that a government tariff policy be announced forthwith, and are anxious therefore that there should be enough Conservative strength in the cabinet to override the free-trade views of the Liberal cabinet members or even of the prime minister.

During the campaign, MacDonald did not commit himself on the protection issue, although declaring he would not oppose a tariff if he believed it was necessary as an emergency measure to aid in the restoration of a favorable trade balance.

For the post of chancellor of the exchequer, vacated by the failure of Philip Snowden to stand for reelection, it was expected that one of the Conservative protection advocates, probably Neville Chamberlain, would be named.

Other shifts were also expected in the cabinet personnel, and definite pronouncements as to the policies of the new government will be withheld pending the reorganization.

BLAME SEWER GAS FOR SEVERE BLASTS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 29.—A series of terrific explosions, eleven in all, rocked the lower Bolivar Road district near downtown Cleveland today, shattering windows and frightening residents to the streets.

A cursory investigation showed the blasts probably were due to accumulated gas in the sewer mains beneath the street.

Manhole lids were blown high into the air, endangering lives as they fell. No one was reported hurt. Sheets of flames shot thirty and forty feet into the air from the manholes and firemen were unable to quell the flames immediately.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADERS WILL PLAN DEFINITE PROGRAM

Control Of Congress May Make Party Responsible

(Copyright 1931 by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Democratic leaders in congress are planning to evolve a definite legislative program before the session opens which is calculated to end charges that they have devoted themselves to "sniping" President Hoover. It was learned today.

The program will serve not only as a basis for action during the long session of congress but may become a part of the Democratic platform in the presidential campaign of 1932.

Recent events, including President Hoover's bi-partisan conference at the White House, have resulted in a widespread demand from the rank and file of the Democrats for concrete action.

Leaders of the party, it was explained by one high in the Democratic councils, also realize they may be the majority party in the house, and may, in many instances, assume responsibility for legislation in the senate.

A close division exists in both branches. The republicans hold a lead of one in the senate on organization. In the house the Democrats now have a numerical majority, and it is possible they may elect a speaker.

Many of the Democratic congressional leaders, it was learned, are planning to return to Washington by November 15, three weeks before the session opens.

During this period they may frame their policy upon President Hoover's banking recommendations. At the White House bi-partisan conference the Democrats endorsed amendments to the federal reserve and farm loan act in principle, but refused to go further.

Since the conference many powers in the party, including Senator Glass (D) of Virginia, have taken a strong position against any changes in the reserve act that would "freeze" its assets.

Republican members of congress for the most part hold that formulation of their program must await the message of Mr. Hoover. But the Democrats believe they must now begin to prepare for aggressive action.

The Democratic program is expected to include banking, unemployment relief, treasury deficit and possible need for tax increase, formulation of a plan to deal with unemployment, tariff reduction, moratorium extension and debt revision, prohibition will be ruled out as a party matter.

INVENTOR IS DEAD IN BLAST

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Victim of his own mechanical brain-child that failed to work, Emil Schoenberger, chauffeur and amateur inventor, was dead today while his assistant, Robert Posi, was in a hospital critically injured.

Schoenberger's wife was recovering from slight burns after she had rescued her two children by tossing them from a second story apartment window to the arms of a policeman.

The apartment was enveloped in flames when Schoenberger's new invention exploded in a garage situated on the floor below. The invention, device calculated to create higher vaporization of gasoline, was being tested by the amateur inventor and his assistant when the blast occurred. Schoenberger was crushed by the burning motor as it fell on him from a trestle. Posi, his clothes aflame and one of his legs shattered, managed to crawl out of the garage.

INCENDIARY FIRE WRECKS ELEVATOR

BRYAN, O., Oct. 29.—Fire apparently of incendiary origin swept the interior of the cooperatively-owned farmers' elevator here today and caused a loss estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000.

Investigation showed the grain elevator had been broken into and fired in several places. Machinery, 11,000 bushels of oats and 2,000 bushels of wheat were included in the loss.

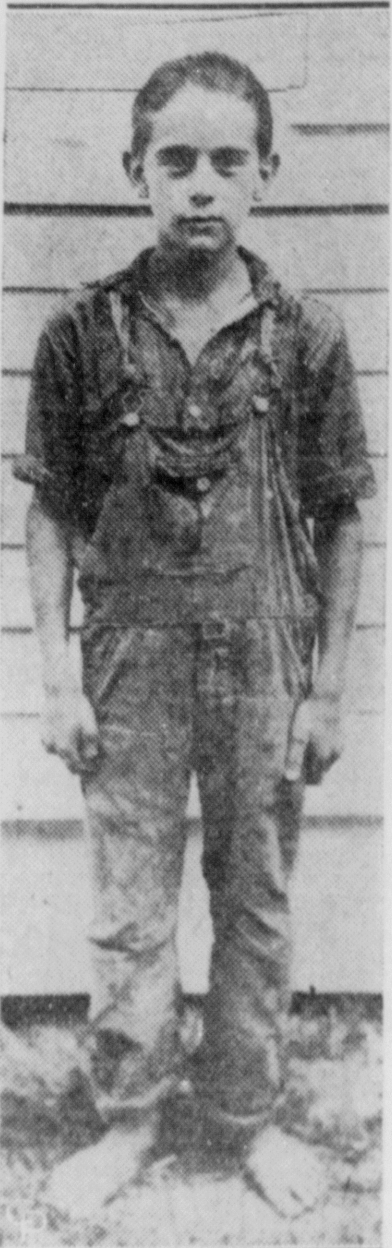

CHILD CONVICTED OF MURDER FACES LIFE TERM SENTENCE

ASOTIN, Wash., Oct. 29.—A Found guilty of slaying Sheriff John Wormell, who discovered him prowling in a mercantile store here, Herbert Franklin Nicolls, age 15, will be sentenced here today.

The dark-eyed youth who weighs but seventy pounds will be condemned to spend the remainder of his life in the state prison at Walla Walla. He will be the youngest person ever to enter the gray-walled penitentiary as a prisoner. Sentence is to be pronounced by Judge E. V. Kuykendahl.

The jury reached its verdict on the first ballot, but spent three hours in determining what, in their minds, would be the best for the lad and his future. They rejected the insanity plea presented for him, which like the first degree murder verdict, would have meant life imprisonment at Walla Walla. The verdict which was reached, the jury announced, appeared to offer the youthful delinquent a better chance for rehabilitation.

Herbert received the verdict calmly. He smilingly shook hands with newspapermen and court attaches. He also slyly poked Prosecutor E. E. Halsey in the ribs, wished him good night and then turned to his grandmother to embrace her.

NAN BRITTON FACES FURTHER ATTACK AS DAMAGE SUIT HEARD

Woman's Character And Reputation Target Of Defense

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 29.—Additional testimony attacking the character and reputation of Nan Britton was expected to be presented by the defense in federal court here today at the third day's sessions of the trial of Miss Britton's $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk, Marion, O., hotel keeper.

Miss Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," charges Klunk distributed "The Answer to the President's Daughter," a book in which she claims she was defamed.

The strenuous objections of William F. Marteller, counsel for the plaintiff, defense attorneys spent part of the afternoon session producing eight Marion residents to testify against Miss Britton's reputation.

Two passages from "The Answer" were read into court records over Marteller's objections. One referred to the divorce suit now pending in New York in which Nan Britton is named co-respondent by Patricia M. Whiteman in her suit against her husband, Richard M. Whiteman. The woman charged her husband was the author of "The President's Daughter."

The other passage was concerned with the married life of the late President Harding. Reading of the passage marked the first introduction of President Harding's name into the testimony of the trial.

Testimony was resumed in the hearing yesterday afternoon after discussing whether to continue the case after Judge John M. Killits reversed his own previous ruling that the burden of proof was on the defense and ordered the plaintiff to furnish proof of the publication of "The Answer."

Marteller, a Grant Mouse Sr., counsel for the defense, agreed to continue with the hearing and the taking of defense testimony was resumed.

Two of the witnesses were former schoolmates of the plaintiff. They were Ellen Lucille Stoll, and Mrs. Helen Grigsby. Miss Britton and Mrs. Grigsby were at one time taught by Daisy Harding, sister of President Harding.

Other witnesses were Mrs. Mildred Christian Roberts, Mrs. Mary Catherine Hane, William R. Martin, Mrs. Esther Geran, and Miss Edna Dutton, society editor of the Marion Star.

By order of the court, Miss Britton's daughter, Elizabeth Ann, was ejected from the courtroom yesterday because of the type of testimony that was likely to develop.

WOMAN'S BODY IS TAKEN FROM CANAL

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Oct. 29.—The body of Miss Mary Bissell, 43, was taken from a canal ditch near Port Jefferson, west of here, today, clearing up the mystery of her disappearance last Monday.

Miss Bissell left her home on Monday with the remark to her housekeeper that she was going to the postoffice. The first trace of her was the finding of her parked car near the canal. Relatives reported they knew of no reason why she should have attempted to take her own life.

RALLS PREPARED TO MEET DEATH AFTER QUARREL IS ENDED

Differences Patched Up In Shadow Of Electric Chair

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—Walter and Blanton Ralls, nephew and uncle, and convicted slayers of Sheriff George Davenport of Crawford County, are going to "face the end" together.

The two Negroes had been "at odds" as to who wielded the weapon that killed the sheriff when they resisted arrest as chicken thieves last January, but it doesn't make much difference now. The Ralls go to the electric chair tomorrow with their differences patched up.

"If we go out tomorrow, we're going to eat our last meal together," Walter said. Blanton agreed glumly. He seemed morose and was in anything but a talkative mood.

Walter, however, still held a ray of hope that an executive pardon would save them from death. He wasn't quite sure just how the executive pardon functioned, but "somehow," he said, "I don't feel like tomorrow's the end."

Walter has become deeply religious. He spends long hours reading the Bible. The Ralls are members of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

"I trust in the will of God," Walter said, "and I don't think he's going to see me die for something I didn't do. I never killed anyone and I never even thought of killing anyone."

Blanton sat nearby playing cards with a cell-mate.

Walter was unquestionably the only cheerful inmate of the gloomy death dungeon, but even his eyes, red and puffed, belied his asserted confidence in the future.

COOPERATION TO COMBAT CRISIS

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Cooperation of all the German people to fight the economic crisis was urged today by President Paul von Hindenburg in an address at the opening session of the Reich's new economic advisory council.

"Whatever the rest of the world does, Germany must rely mainly upon her own power and resources," the president declared. "I want to make the strongest plea for social and domestic peace."

BOY PLAYER KILLED

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A coroner's inquest was to be held today into the death of Kenneth Dreischner, 8, who succumbed to injuries received during a children's football game. The boy's skull was fractured in accident at Findlay. He was not in condition to sign the pardon, was revealed today.

ACCUSED OF THREAT TO KIDNAP ASHLAND CHILD UNLESS PAID

Will Be Questioned About Murder And Bombing Also

ASHLAND, O., Oct. 29.—Police today were to question Dr. I. R. Suter, former Ashland dentist and one-time Ohio National Guard captain, in connection with an alleged extortion plot to obtain $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Miller by threats of kidnaping their eight-year-old son, Parker.

Dr. Suter was arrested yesterday by Ashland police in Mansfield where he recently went to live. No formal charges were placed against the dentist pending today's questioning. T. W. Miller, the boy's father, is the millionaire chairman of the Faultless Rubber Co.

Three telephone calls to Mrs. Miller from a mysterious person led to the arrest of Dr. Suter, police said. The caller in each case made threats to kidnap the boy unless the money, in $20 bills, was paid. Various places to leave the currency were designated in different calls.

Two letters also were received by the Millers, one of which read in part:

"Remember what happened to the Mansfield Journal and Dr. Roby."

The journal plant was partially wrecked last August by a bomb which was hurled from a passing car at the building. Dr. Harry G. Roby, 44, prominent Mansfield dentist, was mysteriously slain in his garage last Sept. 18. The murder is unsolved.

Police said they intended to question Dr. Suter about the newspaper plant bombing and the Mansfield dentist's death in an attempt to learn if the suspected extortioner knows who committed the previous crimes.

Dr. Suter was one of Ashland's leading dentists eight years ago, police said. His wife divorced him two years ago and he moved to Mansfield several months later. He has two sons.

With the man's arrest it was revealed that Mrs. Miller and her son fled Ashland early in October when the first letter was received. Their whereabouts are unknown except to Miller and police. Miller refused to comment on the case today.

Dr. Suter has made no statements since his arrest, police said. Newspapermen have not been allowed to talk to the prisoner.

FOURTEEN ACCUSED OF MINE DISORDERS

ATHENS, O., Oct. 29.—Fourteen more men were free under bond today following their arrest for alleged participation in disorders at Millfield during the mine strike in the region last September. Fifty miners, all named in secret indictments returned by the Athens County Grand Jury, have been arrested.

Charges against the fourteen include riot, assault in the menacing manner, menacing threats, and obstructing a highway. During the strike, automobiles of mine officials were stoned, men were threatened and stones were hurled at a car carrying Col. John S. Shetter and Lieut. L. G. Windom, sent into the strike area as observers by Governor George White.

The fourteen men pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge O. F. Rowland in common pleas court and bonds were fixed at $200 each.

AUTO CRASH FATAL

PIQUA, O., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Ruth Doudna, 32, of Barnesville, died in a hospital here today from injuries received in an automobile accident at St. Paris last Saturday. Cerebral hemorrhage was the immediate cause of death, it was said.

INJURY HELD UP PARDON

Governor Signs Papers Despite Broken Collar Bone To Free Charles McCarl

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—How the sweet freedom promised Charles McCarl, Mason City, W. Va., escaped convict, was held up two days because Governor George White injured his arm in an automobile accident and could not sign the pardon, was revealed today.

Risking his arm for a few strokes of the pen, the governor last night affixed his name to the commutation and today Warden Preston E. Thomas of Ohio Penitentiary gave McCarl a $10 bill and sent him home.

NAN BRITTON SUES FOR DAMAGES

Hearing has begun in federal court in Toledo, O., in a libel suit for $50,000 brought against a Marion, O., hotel keeper by Nan Britton, author "The President's Daughter." Miss Britton is seeking that amount from C. A. Klunk, who wrote "The Answer to the President's Daughter," and who advertised and sold the book in his hotel. She maintains her reputation has been damaged to that extent. Miss Britton is shown here at Toledo at the opening of the trial with her daughter, whom she named Elizabeth Ann Britton Harding, now twelve years old.

NEGRO SLAIN, OFFICER WOUNDED IN GUN DUEL

WOMAN ADMITS SHOOTING MAN

Landlady Says She Fired At Thief

CANTON, O., Oct. 29.—Sam Moldovan, 52, today was shot and probably fatally wounded by Mrs. Sarah Shaheen, 51, a rooming house landlady, when she found the man raiding her chicken coop, police said.

Taken to police headquarters for questioning, the woman readily admitted the shooting, according to authorities. Moldovan was removed to a local hospital with a bullet wound in his right lung and another in his neck. He was expected to recover.

Mrs. Shaheen told police she heard a noise near her chicken coop and investigated, finding the man attempting to break into the place. She fired twice, intending to scare the man but both shots took effect, according to authorities. Abraham Joseph, 49, a roomer at the Shaheen home, corroborated the woman's story when questioned by police.

The woman was held in jail pending the outcome of the man's wounds.

COMISKEY LAID TO REST IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The old Roman, Charles A. Comiskey, went to his final rest today.

Beside the grave of his wife, Nan, who died nine years ago, the departed leader of the baseball world was buried at Calvary Cemetery after funeral services.

A distinguished assemblage of baseball's highest dignitaries attended what was one of the largest funerals ever seen in Chicago.

LUPE DENIES SHE'S TO TAKE MATE

ABOARD S. S. ILE DE FRANCE, Oct. 29.—"Don't you know he's already married?"

With these words, Lupe Velez, dashing Mexican film star, today parried questions regarding reports she was making her trip abroad for the purpose of meeting and perhaps marrying John Gilbert.

She pointed out that Gilbert's divorce from Ina Claire was still to become final and flatly refused to commit herself further. She also declined to discuss rumors of a romance with Gary Cooper, also of the films.

Despite her reticence to discuss any marriage plans she might be entertaining, it was learned Miss Velez had received a wireless message aboard the Ile De France from Gilbert, urging her to come to London. Miss Velez said she planned to debark at Plymouth and spend a short while in the British capital before proceeding to Paris.

TWO MAJOR BATTLES CONDUCTED; CHINA FORCES ARE ROUTED

Fighting Follows Ambush Of Japs By Chinese

(Copyright 1931, by I. N. S.) MUKDEN, Oct. 29.—Two major battles between Chinese irregulars and Japanese troops about 150 miles northwest of Mukden today resulted in the death of 180 Chinese and at least three Japanese, including one officer.

The number of Chinese wounded was set by Japanese headquarters here at about 200. No figures were given out on the number of Japanese wounded.

Sharp, all-day fighting between four companies of Japanese infantry, supported by an artillery battery, and between 1,300 and 1,500 Chinese was carried on in an area twenty miles square, centering around Chenchuan on the Suiping-kai-Taonan Railway. The two major engagements took place some seven miles apart.

The Japanese forces engaged in the fighting included the punitive expedition sent out from Chenchuan to carry on an offensive against harassing bandits and the reinforcements sent to its aid when it was ambushed.

The newly formed Chinese "northeast self-defense corps" fought side by side with the Chinese irregulars in some of the most sanguinary exchanges.

Today's fighting was a sequel to the armed clash Wednesday in which a Japanese captain and two Japanese soldiers were killed when a comparatively small Japanese force was surrounded by the Chinese near Chenchuan.

Report of the attack was instantly flashed to the Mukden headquarters of Gen. Honjo, commanding the Japanese forces in Manchuria.

CAPONE ATTORNEYS PONDER NEXT MOVE; HOODLUM IS FLAYED

Court Denunciation May Prejudice Move For New Trial

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Federal prisoner Alphonse "Scarface" Capone settled down to the dreary routine of the county jail today while his attorneys pondered over their next move in the battle to free the super-gangster.

The campaign for Capone's liberty on bail incurred a decided setback by the sharp denunciation of the hoodlum boss as this cohorts delivered yesterday by federal Judge James H. Wilkerson when he sentenced Phil D'Andrea, Capone bodyguard, to six months in jail for carrying a revolver in court.

The judge's stinging words, painting a picture of intimidation and perjury during the trial, was regarded in official circles as a high barrier confronting Capone's attorneys should they go through with their announced intention of taking the fight for bail to the United States Supreme Court.

Attaches of the district attorney's office declared that Judge Wilkerson's charges will probably be taken into serious consideration by Justice Willis Van Devanter of the United States Supreme Court should he be asked to sign an order for Capone's release on bond, pending outcome of the gangster's appeal.

When the circuit court of appeals rejected Capone's plea for freedom on bail, the convicted underworld chieftain's attorney, Michael J. Ahern, announced he will probably go to Washington and ask Justice Van Devanter for the order.

NEW TREATMENT FOR CORRECTION OF EYE TROUBLE REVEALED

Much talk and favorable comment is heard upon the new scientific method of Eye Development, conceived and practiced in this city by Drs. Wilkin and Wilkin, local Optometric Eye Specialists. Further information upon this subject, from an authoritative source, will prove of interest to many readers.

"Our new Scientific Method of Corrective and Restorative Treatment," says Dr. Carl E. Wilkin, "has enabled us to afford a most remarkable degree of visual efficiency and comfort to many patients who had seemingly given up hope. Many persons now wearing glasses may have them eliminated, others need wear their glasses only part time. This work is so wonderful and we are so enthused over the results we are obtaining in our treatment work, that we want everyone to know about it."

"The same technique and instrumentation used in our Treatment Room is now being used in the large Clinics, and is being taught in Columbia University, Northern Illinois College and other well known educational institutions. We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to the Post Graduate Eye Institute and its Associate Members, especially Dr. W. S. Niswonger, of Greenville, O., for their expert advice and consultation on some of the most difficult cases we have had the pleasure of successfully caring for."

Note: Treatment is only recommended in special cases, when visual efficiency and comfort cannot otherwise be afforded, or when the patient wishes to avoid wearing glasses and their eye condition indicates that this is possible.—Adv.

FAMOUS WATT DUROC JERSEY SWINE HERD SOLD; FAIR PRICES

Sale of sixty head of registered Duroc Jersey boars, sows and gilts was conducted by William R. Watt on his farm one-half mile south of Cedarville Wednesday afternoon. The average sale price was $31.50, considered above average this year.

Top price was $125 paid by J. J. Perkins, Greenville, N. C., for a yearling boar that won first prize at the Ohio State Fair. Second highest price was $112 for a spring pig sold to J. S. Ruble, Bluefield, N. J.

The prize-winning herd of hogs was started about thirty-five years ago by R. C. "Bobby" Watt and was known throughout the United States for its show winnings.

The work has been continued by William R. Watt, son of the founder of the herd, who demonstrated himself a capable breeder and showman by his winnings on the show circuit this year. The herd has been the high money winner at eastern fairs for the last six years.

After leaving the Ohio State Fair, Mr. Watt showed the grand champion sow and junior champion boar at Springfield, Mass.; grand champion sow and junior champion boar at Timonium, Md.; junior champion sow and boar at Reading, Pa.; junior champion sow and boar at Richmond, Va.; and grand champion sow and boar at Chicago, Ill. last Tuesday.

All hogs in the herd are immune from cholera, according to Mr. Watt. The sale Wednesday was well attended and was in charge of three auctioneers, Col. H. L. Igleheart, Elizabethtown, Ky.; Harry Gooding, Anderson, Ind.; and Joe Gordon, Cedarville.

MORE THAN 3,000 ENJOY CITY'S HALLOWE'EN CARNIVAL HERE

More than 3,000 persons are thought to have turned out for Xenia's big Halloween carnival sponsored by the Retail Merchants Association on downtown streets Wednesday night. The affair was a greater success this year than those held in previous years it was agreed.

Activities started at 7:30 o'clock with a parade headed by the Cadet Band of the O. S. and S. O. Home. Between 350 and 400 revelers took part in the parade and a list of attractive prizes was presented to children and adults. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kennedy, Dayton, were each awarded $5 for being the best dressed persons in the parade.

Judges were Dr. E. A. Kern, chairman; Mrs. Kern, M. L. Wolf, Miss Josephine Wolf, Miss Helen Kennedy, C. F. Brace, Mrs. Harry E. Sohn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keble, Miss Helen Jones, Mrs. Charles Adair, this city and Dr. and Mrs. N. T. Pavey, Springfield, former Xenians.

First prize of $5 in the corn husking contest was won by Stanley Heltzer, R. F. D. 4, Xenia, who husked 132 ears in seven minutes. Second prize of $3 was won by Elmer Stewart, near Xenia, whose record was 129 ears in the same time and the third prize of $2 was awarded Clarence Reynolds, Springfield Pike.

The hog calling contest was another feature and was won by Carl Harshman, near Xenia. John Weaver, colored, this city, won the $2.50 prize in the "buck and wing" event.

Activities centered on a large platform erected on the south side of the Court House and announcements of proceedings of events were made through the Gazette's public address system which added greatly to the interest and entertainment of the audience.

A family consisting of man and wife and five small children, all attired and painted in clown makeup, attracted applause when introduced from the platform. The youngest child was aged two and the oldest seven. Although they arrived too late to compete in the costume prizes, the family was presented a cash prize of $2 and a box of candy. They had come here from Dayton to compete but arrived too late for the program.

Because of the large crowd, the public address system was used frequently and effectively by persons seeking lost children and lost children seeking their parents.

The early part of the program, especially the parade, was marred by the fact that the street lighting system throughout the city failed, including the complete boulevard light circuit. A burned out transformer was blamed. Workmen repaired the circuit about 8:45 o'clock.

SOAP-STREAKED front windows of business stores and bushels of corn that littered the streets in the business district were among the hangovers Thursday from Xenia's most successful community Halloween carnival Wednesday night.

The morning after the night before was an especially busy one for George Swartz, caretaker at the Court House, and his assistants, who labored to restore the south lawn of the Court House to its usual immaculate condition.

Boys rushing the Halloween season caused some inconvenience to Xenia residents during the evening, but no complaints of serious property damage or loss were received at police headquarters.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee.—Leviticus, xxvi, 35.

CONVERSATIONS

The joint statement issued by President Hoover and Premier Laval at the close of their conversations in the White House is highly discreet. But the two officials admit they talked of many things of importance, including reparations, arms reduction and international finance. According to the text of their statement, they arrived at no formal engagements.

The concrete statement of most immediate interest in the joint utterance is the one which says that special emphasis was placed on "the more important means through which the efforts of our governments could be exerted toward restoration of economic stability and confidence." There is a revelation of definite harmony regarding an important policy in the words which follow: "Particularly we are convinced of the importance of monetary stability as an essential factor in the restoration of normal economic life in the world, in which the maintenance of the gold standard in France and the United States will serve as a major influence."

If President Hoover and Premier Laval have their way, neither the United States nor France will go off the gold standard. People living in the two countries perhaps need no such assurance. But the statement is of importance elsewhere. It is an answer to budding bimetallists in Great Britain and on the Continent. It ought to dissipate considerable deleterious uncertainty.

According to one account, Premier Laval was disappointed after his meeting with President Hoover because he had been unable to get any assurance of favorable disposition in Washington toward a "consultative pact" that in an emergency might be construed as a security guarantee for his country.

If M. Laval actually came to America chasing such a will-o'-the-wisp, and some of his remarks upon first reaching New York contained a pretty broad hint that a trade along that line involving the disarmament question was a main purpose of his voyage, he must have left Paris singularly uninformed regarding the temper and disposition of the American people and their Government.

It will be quite easy to over-emphasize the importance of anything Mr. Hoover and M. Laval are reported to have said to each other regarding German reparations in relationship to war debts.

If the United States ever concedes the existence of a connection between the two it will do so because of the compelling force of some world condition, not because of the desire of the French to evade payment of a just obligation which they are quite able to meet, and Congress will be the department of government that will act.

How much general effect the trip of Premier Laval to the United States may have on relations between the two countries and on the affairs of the world at large hereafter, only events will reveal. The French official was made cordially welcome, but in no sense did he create the impression Premier MacDonald created while in the United States. There was always the question whether M. Laval came as a Greek bearing gifts, and seeking them. However, that does not preclude the probability that his call will prove valuable to all concerned.

FEWER ACCIDENTS

A noticeable reduction in the number of fatal accidents in the air is reported by the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce for the first six months of the year. The total number of such accidents in miscellaneous flying in the first half of 1931 was 109, as compared with 141 during the corresponding period last year. The number of lives lost in accidents in 1931 was 163, a reduction of 75 from the 1930 casualty list. As less flying has been done this year than last, a truer measure may be found in the number of miles flown for each accident. The rate for the first six months of 1930 was 367,143 miles of miscellaneous flying for every fatal accident; for the first six months of 1931, 397,098 miles, an increase of nearly 37,000 miles per accident.

The largest percentage of accidents, according to the Aeronautics Branch's report, was incurred in pleasure flying, with commercial flying second on the list, student instruction third and experimental flying fourth and last. Air acrobatics, or stunt flying, was responsible for 39 of the 109 fatal accidents that occurred between Jan. 1 and June 30 this year and for 55 of the 163 lives lost in them. The idea that an accident to an airplane in flight means sure death for all aboard it is exploded by the fact that of 1,755 persons involved in the accidents reported for this year, 1,253 escaped injury altogether and 216 more suffered only minor injuries.

Air travel is constantly becoming safer, as better machines are turned out, airways are better marked and weather conditions more efficiently reported; and as greater attention is paid to the training of commercial pilots. Slightly more than 53 per cent of the flying accidents reported to June 30 this year were due to personnel errors, 19.37 per cent to power plant failure and only 11.75 to airplane failure. The human equation at the controls appears still to be the weakest joint in the armor of safety in the air. As that is mended, air travel will continue to increase in security and popularity.

IL DUCE SPEAKS

The bitter denunciation of the Treaty of Versailles uttered by Signor Mussolini at Naples on Sunday synchronized so perfectly with the arrival of his foreign minister, Signor Grandi, at Berlin that the coincidence cannot have been expected to escape notice.

A good deal of water has flowed down the Tiber and the Rhine since the war. The traditional friendship of Italy and Germany has revived under fertilization of France's aggressive self-assertion. As far as the general European situation goes, Signor Mussolini has as good as pledged himself to walk hand in hand with Germany toward disarmament and escape from the burden of war debts and reparations. At Geneva next year Germany and Italy may be looked for on the same side of the table.

Curiously enough it is Signor Mussolini, whose frank utterances in the past have given him abroad the reputation of being a firebrand, who now most vigorously proclaims the growing belief that the way to disarmament and economic rehabilitation lies through revision of the Treaty of Versailles. A decade's experience with that document, which may have been the least the Allied nations could have prevailed upon to ratify in 1919, clearly proves that it cannot be enforced indefinitely without disaster. The problem is to repair the structure of the treaty without bringing it down about the world's ears.

Gandhi has his "untouchables." So has the United States. Only over here we call them racketeers.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—During the early hours after nightfall Manhattan's lower east side becomes a carnival. The sidewalk shops flare with color as exotic as the racial crazy-quilt surrounding them. Here can be bought all the bizarre knick-knacks you'd never think of from one year to the next—and the prices are invariably in odd cents.

There exists a deep-seated crowd feeling that articles sold for 9 or 11 cents are cut-rate, whereas anything for a straight dime is list price. Sidewalk hawkers of food have been known to add a penny and increase sales.

Here are small boys' trousers hung row on row. Here are jeweled diamonds of an Old World imagination and a Victorian taste; tall Spanish combs studded with enormous "diamonds," huge brooches, clocks supported by gilt angels, hand-made shawls with "Mother" and "Mama," "Sister" and "Teacher" embroidered on them in scarlet thread.

LETTER PERFECT

Word trickles in of a curious factor in the race for county judge out in Nassau county, New York. It seems that backers of Paul Bonyne, one of the candidates, cannot get voters to pronounce his name correctly, even when they can be induced to try.

Bonyne, pronounced Bahning, is the same lawyer who fought through the courts the celebrated Commonwealth Hotel case—claiming the return of money put up by people all over the country, who were promised owners' privileges at the hotel when they came to New York.

Still, here's a list which a man would perform to be a millionaire and a celebrity to join in any number: Union League, Authors, New York Athletic, Century, Lambs, Friars, Lotos, Manhattan, Metropolitan, Players, St. Nicholas, University, Calumet, Racquet and Knickerbocker. Nobody ever belonged to them all.

LANGUAGE DIFFERENCES MAKE FOR DIFFICULTIES IN HOOVER-LAVAL TALKS

WASHINGTON.—If for no other reason than that neither can express himself so as to make the other understand, it is safe to say that the conference just held between President Hoover and Premier Laval of France, never will prove to have resulted in any such strictly entre nous concord as is said to have existed between Mr. Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald of England ever since their famous chat on the Rapidan two years ago.

The president and Prime Minister MacDonald have not, it is true, been able to shape all American and British policies in harmony, but the general belief in Washington is that at least they have tried.

No intermediaries were necessary to enable them to plan co-operatively, however.

A conversation between Mr. Hoover and M. Laval was a problem of interpretation word by word. Rendering English into French and vice versa is simple enough where matters of small importance are under discussion, but with issues of national safety and welfare at stake the merest shades of meaning may be vital. Simply consulting a dictionary is not enough. Linguistic experts are needed—several of them, for even they frequently disagree.

Translating international state papers is a notoriously ticklish job, and one that is done at leisure. A rapid fire oral exchange of views is materially worse.

Necessarily, then, there unavoidably must be a considerable number of persons who will know hereafter fully as much concerning the details of the Hoover-Laval conference as its two principals know, and while of course it will remain deeply confidential, nevertheless in numbers there usually sooner or later are leaks.

It is seldom that a European statesman visits America who can, not after a fashion, speak the idiom of the country, since education in languages is a part of old world education for public life; but M. Laval is an exception in being a political accident, and therefore untrained in his profession's technicalities.

Mr. Hoover's French, on the other hand, ends practically at the party woe stage.

He was described, indeed, in early dispatches, as fluent in the tongue of the visiting premier, but the claim appears to have been made for him by one of his secretaries who took it for granted because of his chief's long residence abroad. Assuredly he never made it for himself.

Secretary of State Stimson is a tolerably proficient French scholar for ordinary social purposes, but by no means equal to diplomatic negotiations without assistance in any language but his own.

M. Laval's daughter Jose—or Jo-sette, her father's pet name for her—proved on her arrival here to speak unexpectedly good English, but with nothing like the rapidity or profundity of knowledge necessary to act as the premier's interpreter, as cables had forecast.

The linguistic difficulty has given quite a different character to M. Laval's visit from Premier MacDonald's in other respects. It has largely shut the Frenchman off from interviewers, for one item. Except for a few normal statements he did not wish to talk, and there scarcely was anyone available to cross-question him effectively, as was easy in the Briton's case.

M. Laval has not even a correct Parisian accent, according to critics. A provincial, he is described as retaining more than a trace of the patois of central southern France.

Moreover, the premier looks little like the conventional Frenchman. He is short and chunky, very dark, with full red lips, a bristly mustache and hair almost like an Indian's. His head is round and his face is broad, short and chubby. His expression in repose is stolid, as his pictures indicate, though they do him an injustice, too, for he has a particularly amiable smile which appears as soon as he speaks and changes him entirely.

One naturally looks instantly for his necktie, which is white as per specifications. Not a string tie, but a four-in-hand.

Jose must take after her mother. She is nearly as tall as the premier, and not only slimmer, which is to be expected from her youth, but has not his structural stockiness. The prettiness attributed to her by the society reporters is of the Gallic type, or something other than the American type, anyway. It would be safe to bet against her in an Atlantic City beauty contest.

I wonder if brides who read this column know how to brown the beef pot roast so that their gravy will be that golden brown that men so love. Usually the butcher puts in a piece of suet with the roast. Have the pot or roaster hot, then put in suet—or some bacon fat if you haven't suet—and let it "try out" enough to grease the roaster and is smoking hot, then put in the beef which has been wiped clean with a clean cloth dipped in hot water. Let the meat brown thoroughly on one side, turn, then sprinkle that side with salt and pepper, and brown on the other side. This may take half an hour. Keep the fire low enough to brown the meat slowly as you don't want it to burn. When browned nicely on both sides, add bay leaf, a few cloves if you like the flavor, add a little water and cook slowly until tender.

How Tests Of Organs Are Made

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

A complete medical examination 20 years ago was a comparatively simple affair. A recital of the symptoms, an examination by the doctor's looking, feeling, pounding and listening—to all regions of the body, a urinalysis, a simple blood examination and a record of blood pressure, and that was all. Ten years ago the X-ray had come into its own and it was necessary to add an array of such photographic displays.

The latest development has been to bring in methods and machines from the physiological laboratory. This has meant an entirely new viewpoint. Up to ten years ago most of our thought was bent upon determining whether there was any anatomical change in the body. There was scar tissue in the lungs, there were certain parts of the kidney destroyed, there were stones in the gallbladder? All these things are anatomical changes.

Physiology is the science of function—the actions of organs. And function leaves no discernible anatomical change on an organ. A contraction wave passes across a muscle and when it is gone the muscle is the same as it was before. A gland in the stomach secretes a few drops of digestive fluid, and when it is finished the gland is to all sights and purposes the same as it was.

But for a real understanding of how a sick body is deranged the tests of function are more important than the tests of structure. The only purpose of our anatomy is to do something. It is more important for your medical advisor to know how efficiently contraction waves pass over your muscles than it is to know whether there are small shreds of fibrous tissue in the muscles.

You cannot always tell how efficient a broken down Ford is when you see it standing idle in a garage. If you have had a great deal of experience you may form a pretty shrewd guess, but the Ford may fool even experts. It may pant and rattle and throb and steam and shake as if the next beat of the cylinder were to be its last, and then suddenly it may pitch itself into action and travel its hundred miles and back on schedule time—and be ready for another turn next day.

So with the old frame. Many a man has had a heart murmur which "frightened his medical advisor into saying he would not live three months and yet has got around and done his work for years and years, and even attended the doctor's obsequies. The anatomy of the heart was very bad, but it functioned very well.

So this new science of physiology, or functional, testing has great possibilities and is making considerable headway. Functional testing of the kidney was one of the first subjects to be put on a practical basis. We can now make functional tests of the liver, of the stomach and pancreas. The chemistry of the blood shows us something of the way the elements of nutrition are being handled. Very exact methods of determining the rate of the muscular wave of the heart are constantly used. The general rate of activity of all tissues can be measured by the rate of oxygen consumption—basal metabolism. The brain, lungs, ductless glands, utilization of sugar and other matters can all be subjected to more or less accurate methods of measurement.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. M. S.: "1. Is chronic bronchitis a rare disease and what is the cause of it?"

"2. Is the disease of a serious nature and can it ever be cured after a period of four years' time?"

"3. Do the patients gradually lose weight and do they always have a temperature?"

Answer: Chronic bronchitis is a common disease. Strictly speaking, it is called bronchiectasis, meaning a dilatation of the ends of the bronchial tubes. It is usually caused by a prolonged infection of the nose. It is not often permanently cured, but much can be done for relief. The symptoms of chronic bronchitis are similar to those resulting from a foreign body in the lungs, or tuberculosis. The patients with chronic bronchitis usually lose weight, but do not always have a temperature.

Jealous Cad Lies About Girl

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Lee: I have a perplexing question to ask you.

"Another fellow and I were paying attention to the same girl. This other fellow was extremely jealous and told this girl slanderous lies about me so she would drop me.

"At first she believed him. It wasn't long after that he was making improper advances to her. At his second attempt she ordered him out of the house. As he was leaving he remarked, 'I'll fix you so nobody else will want to have anything to do with you.' So he slandered her all over town.

"I would marry this girl if I could stop the gossip. Would you suggest legal action be taken?"

"Sick At Heart."

I don't believe legal action would stop the gossip. Sick at heart. If the man would lie about an innocent girl for revenge because she resented his advances, he would lie much more readily to prevent her collecting damages for his slander. While a verdict might be found for her and she might get a few dollars out of a suit, many people who never had heard of either of them would learn about the affair, and there would always be some who would believe the worst that could be told about her.

The best way to silence slanderous and gossiping tongues is to marry her. She is more worth to you than all the money in the world, so much of it as knows about the matter and is interested—that you don't believe it and are for her heart and soul.

A cad like this man would not be believed by persons who know him. Anyway, and the few that would believe him should not count. Gossip dies down after a while, when it has no foundation in truth.

Love: As this young man you love makes love to you without meaning it, why not refuse to permit it? He might then take you more seriously.

Discouraged: I don't see what more you can do about the girl you like if she refuses your invitations because she has a boy friend. You should, I think, respect her loyalty to the boy she goes with.

AMONG THE HEADLINERS IN NOVEMBER EVENING SKY

(By Arthur DeV. Carpenter)

The star gazer in northern latitudes is reminded of the approach of winter in November evenings, because the winter constellations now begin to put in their appearance. Constellation Orion, that commands a place of great distinction among the stars, is now a visitor in the eastern evening sky, and Taurus no less of a celebrity, is found a little in advance of Orion up the eastern slope. Aquila and the Lyre, having commanded the summer evening skies, are now far over to the west and must make way for more timely starry champions, Cassiopeia, Perseus, Andromeda and Pegasus are all aloft. Look up your star friends and renew your fellowship.

Finger Nails Are Important

By GLADYS GLAD

The appearance of the finger nails is of supreme importance in the ensemble of beauty, for they can do much toward increasing the loveliness of the hands. But nails that are not smooth, unlined or healthy in appearance constitute not only a beauty problem, but also often indicate the need for a physician's services.

The nails are of such structure that they can be affected in only a few ways. Therefore, one of any number of causes may produce ridging, splitting, scaling, brittleness and even extreme thinness of the nails.

Faulty nutrition is in some cases responsible for the above finger nail abnormalities, as well as failure to provide the body with sufficient time or like mineral substances. But in other instances, the trouble may be of a much more serious nature.

After major illnesses, the nails often show deep depressions. Such depressions are particularly likely to appear after typhoid fever, influenza or pneumonia. But when these diseases are cured, the depressions vanish as the nails grow out. The nails of the big toes, thumbs and forefingers are most indicative of physical health or disease.

The white spots that so many women complain of are said to be due to air between the layers of the nails, or to the failure of parts of the cells to harden normally. They may also result from digestive disorders, or from bruising of the nails by hard implements.

Vertical ridges in the nails may result from extreme nervousness. They may also be caused by an acid condition of the blood. And exaggeratedly curved nails, sometimes indicate the presence of diseases of the chest.

It does not fall within the province of a beautician to treat these nail conditions. A physician's assistance is essential to diagnose and correct the underlying cause of each nail abnormality. But such finger nails can be considerably improved by the nightly use of pure olive oil or special nail oil. A most beneficial procedure is to heat and combine equal parts of linseed and sweet almond oil, and to soak the finger tips in the mixture before retiring each night.

NIGHT GAME BRINGS BIG TIME FOOTBALL HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Strong Teams Will Battle; Kick-Off
At 8 O'clock

Two of the outstanding colored college football teams, both unbeaten this season, will receive their baptism in night football when Wilberforce University and Alabama State Teachers College at Montgomery, Ala., meet under the lights at Cox Field in this city Friday night. The kickoff will be at 8 o'clock.

The intersectional football clash is expected to draw to the highest school athletic field the biggest crowd ever to witness a football game in Xenia.

The Southern eleven, undefeated this fall, is one of the ranking Negro football machines in the South. The Alabama forward wall averages 200 pounds from end to end and the backfield, though somewhat lighter, possesses a world of speed.

Alabama State is coached by a Greene County boy from Caesar Creek Twp. He is Gaston Lewis, who learned about football under Head Coach Harry C. Graves of Wilberforce University.

Since the contest will be a case of teacher vs. pupil, it will be watched with no small degree of interest. Lewis made an enviable record as an athlete while a student at Wilberforce, and has been equally successful as a football coach in the South.

Last season Wilberforce, invading the South for the first time since Tennessee, won from Clark at Atlanta, 26 to 0, and from Alabama State, 26 to 0, within five days, but the Alabama eleven this year is a recognized contender for the Southern Conference crown.

Wilberforce, fresh from its 15 to 6 Chicago victory over Tuskegee Institute, champions of colored college football during the last two seasons, is not taking the advent of the Alabama Hornets lightly.

Represented again by one of the strongest teams in its history, the "Force" is making a determined bid for the national championship. The title claim of the Bulldogs a year ago was blurred by an unexpected defeat by Fisk University, the loss being attributed to over-confidence. The score was 12 to 6. That was Wilberforce's only defeat and Fisk was the only opponent to score on the Graves-coached eleven.

As an added feature of the Wilberforce-Alabama tilt, a dance sponsored by the training table committee of Wilberforce University, will be given at the National Guard Armory Friday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. Two orchestras have been engaged for the affair and the bands will stage a "battle of music." The music will be furnished by Percy Lowery's band and the Alabama State Collegians.

TEAM HOPES TO BREAK LOSING STREAK HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

Xenia Central High's football squad, pictured above, hopes to break a three-game losing streak Thursday night at Cox Field when a powerful Greenville eleven is met in a Miami Valley League contest, the first league game to be staged in the evening under artificial playing conditions. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Members of the Buccaneers grid

SEVENTY-YARD GALLOP GIVES OAKWOOD WIN OVER LITTLE BUGS

A seventy-yard run for a touchdown on the kickoff by Halfback Landis at the opening of the second half enabled Dayton Oakwood's junior football team to defeat the "Little Buccaneers" of Central High School, 6 to 0 in a return game at Cox Field late Wednesday afternoon.

Just as in the preceding game between the two team three weeks ago which ended scoreless, Central juniors clearly outplayed the Oakwood eleven on the rush line, rolling up nine first downs as compared with five for the visitors.

Twice the "Little Bugs" penetrated inside the Oakwood ten-yard line in the second quarter, but a scoring punch was missing. Late in the second period, after being held for downs near the goal line, Central juniors again had a chance when they blocked a punt and recovered the ball within the ten-yard stripe. After two plays the first half ended and the opportunity was lost.

Central kicked off to start the second half and the fleet-footed Landis, a member of his school's track team, caught the ball on his own thirty, dodged his way into the open and raced up the sidelines for the only touchdown of the game. Oakwood was ruled offside on the try for point.

Ed Jacobs, former Muskingum College football luminary, officiated the contest.

It is possible Central juniors may engage in one more game this season, a return affair with Cedarville High's second team, which recently beat the "Little Bugs" here.

REESE TO REFEREE

DR. DAVE REESE, Dayton dentist and popular football and basketball official, will referee the Xenia-Greenville pigskin party at Cox Field Thursday night. Reese, one time star end at Denison College, was later a member of the old Triangle professional team in Dayton. The umpire for the game will be Harry G. Cutler, Ohio State, while E. A. "Tubby" Sauer, Miami University, an old-time Triangle star line-man, will be headlinesman.

AUXILIARY MEETS AT CHURCH SUNDAY

"The Women's Auxiliary's Approach to World's Problems" and "The United Thank Offering in 1931" are two of the subjects to be discussed when the Dayton convocation of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Protestant Episcopal Church meets at Christ Episcopal Church, this city, Friday.

The meeting will open at 10:30 o'clock with Holy Communion at which the Rev. Gilbert P. Symons, Cincinnati, will officiate. He will also conduct the closing intercessions at 2 o'clock. Other speakers during the day will be Miss Laura MacCracken, Miss Louise McCune, and Mrs. Hugh M. Bone. The main address will be given by the Rt. Rev. Robert E. Campbell, bishop of Liberia.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—Led by Governor George White and John M. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, miners and union officials of Ohio met today at a conference called by the governor in an attempt to put the coal industry back on its feet.

Refusing to allow a fractured collar bone to delay the conference, Governor White, his arm in a sling, welcomed the miners and union officials into the executive mansion to hear their side of the sad story of the coal industry's deterioration.

REST HAVEN BOOKS DIAMOND CONTEST

Reluctant to say goodbye to the baseball season because of the continuance of favorable weather, the Rest Haven Park ball club has arranged to play one more game next Sunday afternoon against an all-star Sabina nine at Rest Haven Park. Play will be called at 2:30 o'clock. Thurman Wical, burly right-handed pitching star for Charlotte, N. C., a product of Bowlersville, will pitch for Sabina and there will be other star players in the visiting team's lineup.

SEAL OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

SEAL FOR 1931

This year the Christmas health seal celebrates its twenty-fifth anniversary with a special design to commemorate the quarter-century milestone of its fight against tuberculosis. A stage coach is shown, pulled by four horses prancing through the snow and a trumpeter is seen among the passengers.

One hundred million of these little health stickers will be sent forth November 27 into every corner of the state to carry the message that tuberculosis is communicable, curable and preventable.

"Tuberculosis Takes no Holiday" is the slogan which is being adopted by one hundred and fifteen local public health leagues and Christmas seal committees which will carry on the sale under the direction of the Ohio Christmas Health Seal Committee of which John W. Bricker, Columbus, is chairman. The committee hopes to raise $25,000 between Thanksgiving and Christmas, according to Bricker, in order to continue the fight against tuberculosis in the state. Eighty per cent of this amount will remain in the communities where seals are sold under contract and 20 per cent will be used for state and national work.

BOY SCOUT Activities

A number of the boys of Troop 43 enjoyed an overnight hike to Camp Miami Saturday and Sunday. The Scouts cooked their own supper and breakfast and returned home at noon Sunday.

Those in the group were John McDaniel, James Harris, William Quirk, Lloyd Thorne, Charles Phillips, William Borton, Frederick Huffman, Harold Shaw, Melvin Diamond and Scoutmaster Paul McFarland.

Troop 43 will hold its regular meeting Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

FARMERS IN YELLOW SPRINGS VICINITY SOW TIMOTHY SEED

Sowing of timothy seed in the Yellow Springs locality this fall indicates how customs of farmers differ in various communities, according to George DeWine, manager of the grain elevator in that village.

While in most sections, timothy is sowed in the spring, around Yellow Springs virtually all of it is sowed in the fall, and Mr. DeWine sold more than 300 bushels this fall.

No reduction in wheat acreage this fall below that of 1930 was noticed by the elevator manager, who sold more fertilizer than last year and also more timothy seed to be sowed with wheat.

New corn received at the elevator last week was described as the best quality for the first of the crop in years. Due to the widespread epidemic of hog cholera that killed many hogs in that section, Mr. DeWine predicted the elevator would receive more corn than in many years although the first of the crop was bought at 20 cents a bushel.

Bids for the projects are now being advertised, following final approval of plans and specifications by the board of trustees at its meeting last week-end in Columbus.

“clear road ahead!”

It's great to feel that way . . . and you do . . . when the blood has the “feel” of enough rich red cells

REGARDLESS of age—be fortified with plenty of “red blood.” That s-p-e-l-l-s happiness. Often “that tired feeling” may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial. Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

PROVE to yourself that GILLETTE'S BLUE SUPER-BLADE

gives you far greater shaving comfort for only a few cents more

GILLETTE firmly believes the new Blue Super-Blade, now made in addition to the regular Gillette blade, is absolutely without equal. The proof of this rests entirely with you. You can try the new blade at our risk—use it under any conditions—and decide for yourself.

The Gillette Super-Blade is blue, inclosed in a blue package wrapped with Cellophane. You can instantly identify it—on your dealer's counter or in your safety razor when you shave. It is distinctly different in appearance and performance. Every shave is far smoother and cleaner, easier, quicker and more satisfactory in every way.

Gillette manufacturing methods were completely changed to produce the Blue Super-Blade. Under the new system quality is automatically controlled and never varies. All blades are uniform in keenness and shaving results. Each shave is as smooth and comfortable as the one before.

Try the Gillette Blue Super-Blade on our guarantee of satisfaction. Buy a package now—before it slips your mind—and try a blade or two. If every shave isn't smooth and satisfying—if you don't think the blades are worth their slight extra price—return the package to your dealer and get all your money back.

Natural Gas Is Her Servant

Off for the afternoon without a care! Her dinner is in the oven, but it won't burn. Water is heating, but it won't boil away. There's a fire in her furnace or gas heater, but it won't go out. She is free to "come and go." Natural Gas is her servant.

Today the modern woman knows release from the age-old "bondage" of the home. She is free to come and go, free to dance and play and read and relax, free to really live.

Natural Gas, with new benefits discovered continually, gives women leisure and ease. It cooks food for her and cooks it better, more easily. It provides hot water for scores of uses. It heats one room or the entire house without the firing and tending that accompany ordinary heating methods. It solves problems and lightens burdens—at such a frugal cost.

If you are accepting the many services of Natural Gas, you know what a friendly, accommodating servant it really is. You are free to come and go. If you have not accepted the full services of Natural Gas, you have the cheering prospect of knowing some day what a happy lot the role of housewife can really be.

MISS ANNA QUINBY, COLUMBUS LAWYER, CALLED WEDNESDAY

Miss H. Anna Quinby, 62, Edenton, O., only woman lawyer of Clermont County, who died in Hale Hospital, Wilmington, Wednesday from a paralytic stroke she suffered Monday night, was secretary-treasurer of the Bullskin-Xenia State Highway Association, originally formed to further the movement to have the historic old Bullskin-Xenia road incorporated in the state's highway system and improved.

Miss Quinby was stricken as she started to return to Columbus from her home in Edenton, where she had spent the week end. One of the first women to practice law in the state's capital, she was a candidate for the Republican nomination for state representative from Clermont County, where she had extensive land holdings, in 1930.

Surviving her are three brothers, two of them farmers in southern Ohio, and the third, Ed Quinby, living in Mason, near Cincinnati.

Miss Quinby, prominent in historical circles and well known in Greene County, was one of the most active proponents of the plan to have the state take over the famed Bullskin-Xenia road and complete its improvement from Xenia south to Williamsburg, twenty miles north of the Ohio River. At Xenia, the road joins state route No. 53, going north. H. C. Aultman, Greene County superintendent of schools, and Dr. W. A. Gallo-way, president of the Greene County Historical Society, were other officers of the association.

LOIS CORBIN, a pretty working girl, falls in love with Bruce, who is from one of the wealthiest families in Chicago. Ashamed to let him know where she lives, Lois goes to share an apartment with Margaret and Arlene, two girl friends. Bruce spends all of his time with Lois, and takes her to the nicest places in Chicago to dine and dance. One day he tells her that he loves her, and when she gets with him that evening he tells her that his mother and father are dead and that his Uncle Charles has raised him. Lois is surprised to hear this, but she is more surprised when Bruce slips his mother's diamond on her finger and tells her that he loves her. Margaret and Lois spend a great deal of time on Lois the night that she is going to the country club with Bruce. After she is all dressed Margaret insists that she wear beads that belong to Arlene. Bruce arrives and is admiring Lois in her beautiful new formal when Arlene comes into the room. Arlene makes herself very noticeable by lighting Bruce's cigarette for him and in other ways. When she sees that Lois has on her beads she takes that chance. Lois is hurt at first, but she soon forgets about it when she is transplanted into the new world that is the North Shore Country club. Lois notices that one woman who has been introduced to her as Mrs. Hayes follows her around all evening. Just as they are ready to go home she pounces upon Lois, claiming that Lois is one of the burglars who looted her home the week before. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 16

"YOU DON'T know what you're talking about," Bruce said angrily. "People began to crowd around them. Lois thought she would faint if she could not get out of here. It was terrible. Seeing the face of that woman before her, her black eyes accusing her, and then seeing Bruce's face twitching with anger, his eyes pleading, Lois never had seen him this way before. And it was all on account of her. It was terribly humiliating. "I think we'd better step into this room, Mrs. Hayes," Bruce said quickly, "since you are causing a scene."

Lois followed him into the little room that was just off the hallway. She felt as though she were actually guilty, the way people were staring at her and hearing Mrs. Hayes' accusations reiterated. "Now," Bruce said, "please state what is troubling you, Mrs. Hayes. Evidently you have mistaken Miss Corbin for someone else."

Mrs. Hayes calmed herself a little when they were alone, but she was still determined that Lois had stolen her dress. "I was robbed about a week ago," she said nervously. "The maid said the burglars and a girl was with them. Among the things they took was the dress that this girl has on."

Lois laughed. "It would be funny, if it weren't so tragic. I'm sure you'll want to apologize to Miss Corbin. We understand that you were a bit upset when you saw a dress like yours."

Lois wanted to hug Bruce, he was being such a brick about it all.

Mrs. Hayes bristled at that. "I'll not apologize," she said quickly. "I know my dress when I see it. Why it even has my initials on the back of the modiste's tag."

Bruce laughed again. "Funny, isn't it, Lois?"

Lois began to see light. She had bought the dress at a second-hand store. Burglars often took their loot to places of that kind and disposed of it. That was what had occurred then. But how was she going to prove it? She could eventually, of course, but not tonight.

Mrs. Hayes asked, "Are you willing to let Bruce Durand see that dress tag?"

"Of course," Lois assured her, "but I can explain everything, if you'll only let me."

Mrs. Hayes pulled out the dress tag triumphantly. "See, she said, 'R. H. Ruth Hayes.'"

Bruce looked at Lois questioningly. She would have to tell him everything now, where she had paid for it and all about it. She hadn't wanted him to know. And to have to stand there, guilty, until she had proved herself to be innocent was dreadful! She knew that he never would forget it. She couldn't. She didn't want to ever have to face him again.

"I bought it," Lois began quietly, "at a second hand store on Clark Street."

"I don't believe it," Mrs. Hayes snapped. "Bruce stood up straight. 'Mrs. Hayes,' he said, 'I haven't said anything to you because I have respect for all women. I've heard you call this girl whom I admire greatly a thief and now you are intimating that she is a liar. That's far as you can go. I'll not listen to any more from you.'"

Mrs. Hayes laughed mockingly. "Who is this girl that you're so interested in, Bruce?"

"That's my affair," Bruce asserted. "But since you ask it I'll tell you. She's the girl I'm going to marry."

"Does your aunt know about it?" Mrs. Hayes questioned.

Bruce knew that Mrs. Hayes was a close friend of his aunt's. They often went shopping together. Mrs. Hayes likewise invariably attended social affairs at his aunt's. Immediately he knew that she would try to make trouble for him. He did not answer her.

"I'll see that she knows whom her nephew is bringing to the club while she is away," Mrs. Hayes said haughtily.

"I think that is a little beside the point just now," Bruce flung at the irate woman.

Mrs. Hayes waved her hand in a gesture of dismissal. "Oh, I'll forget about it. I suppose since she's a friend of yours, Bruce," she said, "I don't want you to forget it."

Bruce declared, "I want you to go with me to the dress shop where Lois bought this dress, so that you will be satisfied once and for all."

Mrs. Hayes failed to tell them that the things that he been stolen from her home amounted to very little. Some inexpensive costume jewelry had been taken and one other dress besides the one which Lois was wearing. Seeing Lois in the dress had made her angry. She was an impulsive woman, anyway. If Mr. Hayes had been there with her, Bruce reflected, this would not have occurred. He would be charged when he heard about it.

Lois was crying softly into her handkerchief. She felt Bruce put his arms around her.

"Don't worry, honey," he whispered to her, "please try to forget it."

Mrs. Hayes walked out then, when Bruce had his back turned to her. They heard the door slam softly and when they turned around she was gone. Lois could not stand it any longer. She sat down near a window and cried. Bruce stood there with her helpless. He tried to comfort her, but a man is so bewildered when he sees a woman crying. He does not know what to do. He patted her shoulder gently.

"Don't, Lois, please don't cry," he calmed her. "Don't you know how badly it makes me feel when you do that?"

Lois thought, "I'll never be able to come out here again. His people always will remember this incident even though it was unjust. This is the end. I know. I feel it."

She said, however, "I can't hold it. Bruce's tone was soothing. 'I know, I know they are. It's all my fault, too. I brought you to a place where the best people are supposed to gather. Where membership is limited to money and social prominence and yet you were insulted. This has certainly been a fine example of what society is. I'll never mean anything to you.'"

Lois clung to his hand. "You don't think I stole her dress do you, dear?"

Bruce took her by the shoulders. "Look at me," he said. She raised her head up. Her eyes were heavy and swollen. She could not keep the tears back.

"I never would believe anything like that about you as long as I lived. The only thing that worried me was the position it put you in."

"I've never had anyone talk to me before the way she did," Lois told him.

"She's going to apologize to you, honey for everything she said," Bruce assured Lois.

Lois rose wearily. She now loathed the dress that had caused her so much trouble. The glittering sequins seemed only to be mocking her as Bruce held her jacket for her to put on.

She didn't say anything all the way home. She merely leaned over with her head against Bruce's shoulder. All the feeling of hope and gaiety had left her. In its place were only despair and disillusionment.

Local Group Is Advised: Grid Movie Takes Prize

Carl E. Milliken, the former governor who is now secretary of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., the Will Hays organization, goes considerably out of his way to write commendation of "The Spirit of Notre Dame," new Universal picture, in a letter to Mrs. S. O. Hale, Xenia, who heads the reviewing committee of Catharine Greene Chapter, D. A. R.

Milliken writes: "We have endeavored to keep you advised about pictures of unusual merit; sometimes simply because of their exceptional entertainment value, and again because of some incidental educational, artistic or moral worth. 'The Spirit of Notre Dame' is a picture that happily combines all of these reasons for your especial interest.

"This photoplay has caught all the thrill of football as played by the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame under the coaching of Knute Rockne and is portrayed "Universal denies that it was asked by Hays to eliminate the Smith reference to satisfy the narrow-mindedness of the Southern delegation of this women's unit. But—

"Two important Southern circuit heads also told Universal, in sotto voice, that if the company expected playing time below the Mason-Dixon line, Smith's head, brown derby and all, must be guillotined.

"Another story has it that the Smith sequence was deleted when 'U' found the film two reels too long.

"However, regardless of what influence prompted its removal, the fact remains that the head was sacrificed and although it is pretty hard to prove, we feel more than a little sure that the late Knute Rockne, whose sportmanship is the motivating force through the picture, would most certainly do everything within his power to withhold release in the South if he knew the reason for Smith's exit—which is just about typical of everything but sportmanship."

It is a gripping, thrilling drama, starring Lew Ayres and featuring the most famous players of the Notre Dame team. It has genuine heart interest without a leading lady.

"Don't miss it. You may safely recommend it to all your friends with the assurance that they will be grateful for your suggestion."

Another side to the production of this picture is told in the October 17 issue of the Motion Picture Herald, which contains information principally for exhibitors. It is presented herewith without comment.

"Universal originally had in its new 'Spirit of Notre Dame' several shots of Al Smith, which, when previewed, caused much concern and lifting of eyebrows to the reviewing committee of a nationally-known organization, who are understood to have issued an ultimatum or something to Will H. Hays that Al Smith be taken from the picture—or else."

Reinforcements were sent out simultaneously from Suipingkai and Chenchiatung. These two bodies of troops today engaged in the two separate battles, seven miles apart, in which 180 Chinese soldiers were killed and an undetermined number wounded.

Two of the Japanese infantry companies and the artillery battery participating in the battles was from Suipingkai. The other two infantry companies were from Chenchiatung.

These two forces were following the Lia River, which at this point divides into an eastern and a western branch, when they closed with the Chinese troops.

The Japanese troops from Suipingkai entrained east of the city and were proceeding northward to disperse mixed Chinese forces. The opening skirmish came when they caught up with a body of 300 Chinese. Sharp fighting ensued and the Chinese were put to rout, leaving thirty dead on the field of battle.

The retreating Chinese troops fled westward. The Japanese started in pursuit; but had not gone far when they encountered the main body of Chinese troops, about 1,000 strong.

At this point in the fighting the Japanese artillery was brought up to support the foot soldiers. The sanguinary battle that followed ended with the Chinese in retreat. One hundred Chinese were killed in this encounter.

In this Chinese force, according to the Japanese, were bandits accused of murdering Koreans and of looting and destroying Japanese property. There were also, Gen. Honjo's headquarters say, regular Chinese soldiers of the northeast self-defense corps operating in several districts around Mukden.

The second battle was between the Japanese troops from Chenchiatung and a Chinese force made up of both regulars and irregulars. It began when the Japanese tried to capture Yikuosho and resulted in the flight of the Chinese after fifty of their number had been killed.

The Japanese forces are now returning to their bases at Chenchiatung and Suipingkai.

Meanwhile, two Japanese civilians have been killed at the south gate of Mukden as a result of sniping by Chinese "plain clothes" soldiers.

General Honjo's headquarters expressed fear today that it will soon be necessary to "clean up" the entire district between Mukden and Changchun, northern terminus of the South Manchuria Railway.

Alarm is also felt regarding conditions westward of this line due to the gathering in that area of Chinese regulars, irregulars and bandits. These are said to total 3,500.

There is a large Korean population in this area. The Japanese state that one Korean village has already been attacked, twenty-five Korean houses burned down and twenty-five Koreans shot or left to die in the flames.

TOKYO, Oct. 29.—Soviet Russia is lending aid to the Chinese military leaders who are seeking to establish their sway over Heilungkiang province, it was stated in Japanese agency dispatches reaching here today from Mukden.

According to these reports, 300 freight cars crossed the Siberian-Manchurian border Tuesday. Japanese observers in Manchuria have expressed suspicion that they were carrying arms and ammunition.

Fifteen hundred Chinese troops, armed with sixty machine guns, are reported to be planning an attack on Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang province. Tsitsihar is close to the Chinese Eastern Railway, which is jointly operated by China and Russia.

"No Harsh Irritants for Lupe

I'm a LUCKY fan"

"No harsh irritants for Lupe. I'm a Lucky fan. There's no question about it—Luckies are certainly kind to my throat. And hurrah for that improved Cellophane wrapper of yours—it really opens without a tug-o-war—thanks to that tab."

Lupe Velez

What a grand addition to Hollywood and the screen is Lupe Velez, the wittiest and liveliest little Mexican beauty who ever hopped the Rio Grande. Hollywood adores her. She will cavort for us next in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's fine picture, "The Cuban Love Song."

Made of the finest tobaccos—The Cream of many Crops—LUCKY STRIKE alone offers the throat protection of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays—the process that expels certain harsh, biting irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. These expelled irritants are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

"It's toasted"

And Moisture-Proof Cellophane Keeps that "Toasted" Flavor Ever Fresh
